Key Points

- In the first half of the term ending March 2021, sales decreased 4.2%, and operating profit increased 2.3% year on year. Sales declined in both domestic and overseas WORK businesses due to the spread of the novel coronavirus. In the domestic WORK business, the performance of the sales outsourcing and factory outsourcing fields deteriorated, and personnel introduction went down in the overseas WORK business. Although the sales dropped, profits rose due to reviewing new investment plans and head office costs and receiving subsidies both in Japan and overseas.
- The upwardly revised full-year forecast estimates sales and operating profit to go down 4.9% and 18.0%, respectively, year on year. The better-than-expected performance in the first half was reflected in the full-year forecast. However, in the second half, sales and operating profit are expected to decrease 5.5% and 40.3%, respectively, year on year. At the beginning of the term, it was expected that sales would return to normal in Q4, but currently, new orders have been sluggish. Thus, the outlook for normalization has been revised, and sales are estimated to return to normal in the next term or later. In terms of profits, the company plans to make investments that it had restrained, and SG&A expenses will rise compared to the first half. The dividend is scheduled to increase 1 yen per share to 24 yen (expected payout ratio: 30.5%).
- Currently, the novel coronavirus is spreading to the extent that the third wave of infections is occurring. Nonetheless, there is no change in the trend of improvement in gross profit margin and the number of staff members in service, which are the basis for the company's business performance recovery. The gross profit margin improvement is due to the positive results of working on price revisions for equal pay for equal work since the previous fiscal year. The company will promote the "WORK SHIFT strategy" to improve operating profit margin by changing the business and working style. Specifically, in the domestic WORK business, the company will promote the shift to temporary staffing to highly specialized areas and personnel introduction and improve existing temporary staffing productivity through digitalization. On the other hand, it will emphasize business stability rather than expanding in the overseas WORK business. It aims to dispatch more workers in stable areas with high expertise such as government-affiliated projects, IT engineers, accounting and finance, and legal affairs, where the overseas subsidiaries are strong.

*Unit: Million yen

Sales decreased 4.2% and operating profit grew 2.3% year on year.

Sales revenue dropped 4.2% year on year to 58.17 billion yen. Sales of domestic call center outsourcing field, nursing care and childcare field, HRTech field, which is under development, temporary staffing overseas, etc., increased. However, the spread of COVID-19 impacted the sales of domestic sales outsourcing field, factory outsourcing field, and overseas personnel introduction.

In terms of profits, despite a decrease in profit in the sales outsourcing and factory outsourcing and an increase in labor costs and IT investment, the company received overseas employment support subsidies and domestic employment adjustment subsidies, and there was a decline in paid leave reserves. Thus, operating profit increased 2.3% year on year to 2.22 billion yen. Although pretax profit dropped due to an increase in financial expenses, net profit rose 5.1% to 1.3 billion yen due to a decrease in corporate income tax expenses (750 million yen → 560 million yen).

EBITDA (operating profit + depreciation and amortization), which the company emphasizes, was 3.26 billion yen, up 5.8% year on year. The number of employees at the end of the second quarter was 4,762, an increase of 274 from the end of the same period of the previous year.

As for Other segment, a total of 250 million yen was recorded due to a gain on sale of real estate for sale and gain on sale of fund shares, which was offset by IFRS adjustment and included in other comprehensive income.

*Unit: Million yen

*In other segment, revenues from sales of real estate for sale and gains on sales of fund shares of 810 million yen and segment profits of 250 million yen were offset by IFRS adjustments.

Domestic WORK business

Sales revenue was 39.59 billion yen (down 5.1% year on year), and segment profit was 2.11 billion yen (down 14.8% year on year). Both sales and profit exceeded the estimates (sales of 39.57 billion yen and a profit of 1.99 billion yen). Although sales in the call center outsourcing field and nursing care and childcare field augmented, sales in the sales outsourcing field and factory outsourcing field dropped due to the impact of the spread of COVID-19.

In the sales outsourcing field, although the telecommunications field has recovered after the state of emergency was lifted, the severe conditions in apparel and sales promotion continue. In the factory outsourcing field, the food sector remained strong, but orders decreased in the non-food industries due to the reduced production by customers. On the other hand, in the call center outsourcing field, even though the number of staff members in service decreased due to social distancing, the unit price per person increased. In the nursing care and childcare field, new dispatch orders declined due to increased direct employment. However, demand is still strong. The start-up personnel support field has been on a gradual recovery trend since the first quarter. ALT dispatch has not been affected by the resumption of schools after the state of emergency was lifted. Furthermore, the demand for construction engineers is robust, and the company expanded the hiring of inexperienced personnel and strengthened new sales activities.

In terms of profits, although hiring costs were curtailed (down 230 million yen year on year) based on the status of new orders (decrease in the number of job openings), profits fell due to the drop in sales in the sales outsourcing and factory outsourcing fields.

After continuous decline in demand, the number of staff members in service is expected to bottom out at the end of the second quarter, and recovery is expected from the third quarter onward.

Overseas WORK Business

Sales revenue was 17.9 billion yen (down 2.5% year on year), and profit was 560 million yen (up 21.0% year on year). Both sales and profit exceeded the estimates (sales of 16.96 billion yen and a profit of 490 million yen). Despite the spread of COVID-19, temporary staffing for government-affiliated institutions, engineers, finance and legal affairs, etc., remained strong. Still, personnel introduction decreased due to the economic slowdown and stagnant corporate activities in Australia and Singapore.

Profits increased due to the revision of fixed costs (SG&A expenses declined 400 million yen) and employment support government subsidies (about 500 million yen) as a countermeasure against the novel coronavirus in Singapore.

Although the demand for personnel introduction is expected to recover gradually, the company will shift to temporary staffing, which has a strong market.

Both sales and profit exceeded the estimates (sales of 950 million yen and a loss of 170 million yen). To expand forms of business other than the labor-intensive business, the company is expanding the HRTech field through platforms such as "Hour Money," a working time management system for foreign workers, "Day Work," part-time work for spare time application, and "Enport," a foreign worker support service. Moreover, in the first quarter, the company sold one unit of rental housing (TECH RESIDENCE) for IT engineers and creators and sold some shares held by the fund.

In terms of profits, although the company made an upfront investment in the HRTech field (220 million yen), profits rose due to the expansion of existing businesses, and gains on sales of rental housing and sales of some shares held by the fund (250 million yen).

Gains on rental housing sales and sales of some shares held by the fund were offset by IFRS adjustments and were included in other comprehensive income. Therefore, it is not included in consolidated operating profit.

*Unit: 100 Million yen

Sales and operating profit are projected to decrease 4.9% and 18.0% respectively, year on year

The better-than-expected performance in the first half was reflected in the full-year forecast. However, in the second half, sales and operating profit are estimated to decrease 5.5% and 40.3%, respectively, year on year. Although the gross profit margin of the domestic WORK business is forecasted to improve, the company intends to resume the investment for growth, which it has restrained, in addition to the decrease in overseas employment support subsidies and increase in paid leave reserves. As a result, SG&A expenses are estimated to increase 900 million yen from the first half (personnel expenses will increase 300 million yen, hiring expenses will rise 200 million yen, WILLOF brand promotion expenses will go up 100 million yen, etc.). Furthermore, at the beginning of the term, it was predicted that sales would return to normal in Q4, but recently, new orders have been sluggish. Thus, the outlook for normalization has been revised, so that sales are estimated to return to normal in the next term or later.

The year-end dividend is to increase 1 yen per share to 24 yen per share (expected payout ratio: 30.5%).

Although the demand for sales promotion will struggle in the second half of the year in the sales outsourcing field, apparel will bottom out. The company will strengthen operations in services such as communication and sales agencies. In the call center outsourcing field, the company will enhance sales activities for new orders and expand the top line while emphasizing profitability. In the factory outsourcing field, the company will improve sales activities in the food area and focus on operations in projects related to foreign technical intern trainees and personnel with specific skills in preparation for the age after the deregulation of immigration restrictions. In addition to enhancing sales activities for new orders of temporary staffing in the nursing care and childcare field, it will increase sales personnel to strengthen workers' introduction, which has strong demand. As for start-up personnel support, the company will enhance support for executives, engineers, etc., who are in strong demand even during the novel coronavirus crisis. Also, it will increase sales personnel in anticipation of the post-pandemic era. In light of the strong demand for construction engineers' temporary staffing, the company will boost recruitment activities and order sales to expand the dispatch of inexperienced workers. Also, demand for ALT dispatch and engineer dispatch is strong, and sales are expected to increase.

Overseas WORK Business

The company will focus on expanding temporary staffing, which has strong demand. Moreover, although the number of orders for personnel introduction will decrease for the full year due to the economic slowdown, recovery is expected toward the end of the fiscal year.

4. Conclusions

Currently, the novel coronavirus is spreading to the extent that the third wave of infections is occurring. Nonetheless, there is no change in the trend of improvement in gross profit margin and the number of staff members in service, which are the basis for the company's business performance recovery. The gross profit margin improvement is due to the positive results of working on price revisions for equal pay for equal work since the previous fiscal year.

The company will promote the "WORK SHIFT strategy" to improve operating profit margin and respond to changes in the environment by changing the business (Portfolio Shift) and working style (Digital Shift).

In the domestic WORK business, the company is working to improve profitability through "Perm (personnel introduction and temporary staffing to highly specialized areas) SHIFT" and "Digital SHIFT in the Temp (temporary staffing and outsourcing contracts) area." In "Perm SHIFT," the company will expand its personnel introduction services in the fields of nursing care and childcare, which are always suffering from labor shortage. It will also shift to temporary staffing in highly specialized areas such as construction, IT engineers, and B2B sales agencies. In "Digital SHIFT," to improve temporary staffing productivity, the company will strive to improve productivity by making operations online and automated and utilizing in-house education and HR technology.

In the overseas WORK business, the company has established a business foundation in the ASEAN and Oceania regions through aggressive M&A up to the previous fiscal year. Hence, in the future, it will focus on business stability rather than expanding the scale of business and work on "Temp SHIFT." Specifically, overseas subsidiaries often dispatch temporary staff in highly specialized and stable areas such as government-affiliated projects, IT engineers, accounting and finance, and legal affairs. So, the company will increase the stability of management by further focusing on temporary staffing. The company will also develop new overseas group brands and pursue synergies between subsidiaries, such as joint development of HR products and cross-selling.
